

FREE

May 23rd

Noon- 3pm

Salem Water Fair

Celebrating & Educating Children & Communities

presented by NW Permaculture Institute

Admission FREE, Doors open at NOON for activities & info at the water fair!

1pm, feature film, "A Simple Question: The Story of STRAW" (Students and Teachers Restoring a Watershed) a national model for involving students in hands-on, place-based environmental education. Narrated by Peter Coyote and featuring Richard Louv, the film explores this innovative program that brings together students of all ages, their teachers, community groups and local land-owners to undertake habitat restoration and preserve endangered species. STRAW transforms teachers, who are looking for meaning and joy in their work; and it transforms students, by engaging them in real work that they can see makes a difference on the immediate world around them.

Speakers: Gus Bluejay, 16 year old water activist educating youth through the Blue Youth Water Project, & Laurie Aguirre and H.O.P.E Team students, present, "Honoring Our Rivers: Kids Care About River Conservation."

Bring your family, bring your friends, bring your favorite teacher, for an afternoon of education and inspiration about the power we all have to make a difference. Activities & information continue throughout the event until doors close at 3pm. Visit nwpermacultureinstitute.org for updates on activities at the water fair.

Location:

Unitarian Universalist Congregation of Salem
5090 Center Street NE, Salem 97317

For more information: call 503-449-8077

Unitarian Universalist
Congregation of Salem

Northwest

Permaculture
Institute

